Call to Worship (Ps 103:1-13)

With all our hearts, we praise you O LORD,

.....from the depths of our being

.....we name you as our one and only.

With all that we are - we sing your praises;

.....how could we ever forget all you have done for us?

When we do wrong, you forgive us;

.....when we are sick, you make us well;

.....when our lives fall apart, you put us back together.

With love and mercy, you treat us like royalty;

.....you shower us with good things all our lives;

.....you make us feel as young and free as an eagle.

You are there for those who are victimized;

.....you clear their names and bring them justice.

Through Moses, you make your ways known to us;

.....through Israel, you let us see what you can do.

Your mercy and generosity are extravagant;

.....your patience and love are as solid as rock.

When we do things that anger you,

.....you don't keep dredging them up forever.

You never deal with us as harshly as we deserve;

.....despite the wrong we have done, you let us off lightly.

We could no more climb to the moon on a step ladder

.....than measure the limits of the love and loyalty

.....you show to those who respect you.

We could no more swim the ocean from pole to pole

.....than cover the distance you put between us and our sins.

Your care and concern for those who honour you

.....is as tender as that of parents for their children.

With all our hearts, we praise you O LORD,

With all that we are - we sing your praises.
